FAHRNEY'S BLOOD SEARCHER,

OR PANACEA.

THIS well known and popular medicine was formerly put up in packages by Dr. Fahrney, near Boonsboro', Md., but is now put up in a liquid form, and is highly commended for all Chronic or long standing Diseases. Hundreds of testimonials could be given, but the following will suffice:

"Dr. P. Fahrney's Blood Searcher or Panacea," is a medicine that we can recommend to those who are afflicted, having used it in our own family and furnished our friends with the article; we can, therefore, from experience say that it is a medicine possessing rare medicinal properties. Being a mild purgative, it is well to keep it always in the family where there are children or those subject to colds or other sickness. It is compounded from medicinal Roots, Leaves, Barks, Seeds, and Berries, which are said to be entirely free from poison. We are personally acquainted with the proprietor, who was our family Physician for several years, and we were at one time raised from a bed of affliction under his judicious treatment.—Christian Family Companion.

FAHRNEY'S BLOOD SEARCHER.—From our personal acquaintance with Dr. P. Fahrney, and from the reputation of the above named medicine in the community where he lives, we can cheerfully recommend it to a fair trial to all who may need a PANACEA for the physical maladies of mortality—until the great PANACEA for all diseases shall be found in the leaves of the tree of life.—Prophetic Watchman.

Sold by Tolman, Crosby & Co., Wholesale Druggists, Chicago, Ill., and by B. A. Fahnestock's Son & Co., Pittsburg, Pa.

Also by A. D. BUEHLER, Gettysburg, Dr. JAMES CRESS, Littlestown, and SHIELDS & MUSSELMAN, Fairfield, Adams county, and by Storekeepers and Druggists generally.

Jan. 29, 1869. tf

CURES Rheumatism, Neuralgia, Headache, Toothache, Earache, Sore Throat, Sprains and Contusions, Burns and Scalds, Pains in the Back and Sides, Colic, Cramp in the Stomach, Diarrhoea, Cholera Morbus, etc.—in fact, the Magic Balm is one of the Best Medicines for Pains in the known world.

Thousands have been relieved of long suffering by the use of this great remedy. Diseases often come suddenly, and if persons would use precaution and always keep a bottle of the Magic Balm in the house, much suffering will be prevented. This remedy is not hastily thrown out before the public, but is the result of experience and eminent knowledge. Prepared by Dr. J. H. CAUFMAN, Baltimore. Sold by all Druggists.

This Company, National in its character, offers, by reason of its Large Capital, Low Rates of Premium, and New Tables, the most desirable means of insuring life yet presented to the public.

The rates of Premium, being largely reduced, are made as favorable to the insured as those of the best Mutual Companies, and avoid all the complications and uncertainties of Notes, Dividends, and the misunderstandings which the latter are so apt to cause the Policy Holders.

Several new and attractive tables are now presented, which need only to be understood to prove acceptable to the public, such as the INCOME PRODUCING POLICY and RETURN PREMIUM POLICY. In the former, the policy-holder not only secures a life insurance, payable at death, but will receive, if living, after a period of a few years, an annual income equal to ten per cent. (10 per cent.) of the par of his policy. In the latter the Company agrees to return to the assured the total amount of money he has paid in, in addition to the amount of his policy.

The attention of persons contemplating insuring their lives, or increasing the amount of insurance they already have, is called to the special advantages offered by the National Life Insurance Company.

THE DEAD SUMMER.

Ah! how she came and went! so stealthily
That one can make the short-lived periods seem,
Even with their wreath of blooms and song of birds,
No other than a dream.

And yet the summer has withheld no gift
Such as God annually sends. The grateful shower,
The glorious sunshine and the healthful breeze
Have blessed each passing hour.

The seed time and its cheerful promises
Of rich reward for labor have been given,
With luscious fruits and flowers, like censers filled
With the sweet breath of heaven.

Even now, while wrapped in royal drapery,
Lifeless upon her bier the summer lies,
The hills, as if unconscious of her fate,
Still wear their rich green dyes.

So quietly she left us, and so fair
The blushing blossoms looked that last she kissed,
We did not dream that anywhere on earth
So soon she would be missed.

But now the sunlight falls with paler beams,
And sadder look upon the tender grass;
And winds, ah me, the plaintive, wandering winds,
Chant dirges as they pass!

While the lone cricket by my cottage door,
All tendency to lighter moods restraining,
Breaks the deep stillness of this autumnal eve
With its rythmical complaining.

Somewhere a summer waits that in due time
Will come and smile upon the dead ones sleeping,
And open into bloom the folded buds
Which spring has in her keeping.

And those who wait and watch will greet with cheers
Each joyous signal of her queenly coming,
And nature will break out in songs again,
Sweet as the brooklet's humming.

Thus one by one the hurrying seasons pass,
Each cycle narrower to our human seeming,
Till, glancing upward, lo! the brief years lie
Like some delusive dreaming.

Only the good and true of all our sets,
Like timid stars from out the darkness stealing,
Strike their pure lights along the slope of time,
Life's real worth revealing.

A THRILLING EXPERIENCE.

A correspondent of the New York Republic, writing from the "North Woods," tells the following story:

At the foot of the Lower Cedar, about fifty yards from the shore, is a small and low, rocky island, not more than thirty feet in diameter, having a few shrubs growing upon it, with a single scrubby spruce and a young mountain ash in the centre, neither of which is twelve feet in height.

It was January.

John left his home, some eighteen miles away, taking a bag of provisions and a few spring traps, to be absent a week or more, in pursuit of mink and marten. It was an open season. Little snow was upon the ground, and all the lakes were unfrozen. John made his way alone to the Lower Cedar lake, deposited his provision bag in the log shanty, and taking his boat and traps, rode over to the little island which has just been described. Running the boat up on the rocks, he stepped out with a trap, and went to the opposite side of the island, a distance not exceeding twenty-five feet, carefully set his trap and returned to the landing.

What was his dismay to find his boat caught lightly upon a low rock about two rods from the island.

Here was a serious predicament for the incautious trapper. There was not a tree nor a branch by which he could reach the boat. There were no withes nor bark which, being tied together and attached to a stone, could be thrown into the boat. He had never learned to swim a stroke. Between him and the rock on which his boat was stranded were the waters, dark, cold, and ten feet deep. What was to be done?

John was an iron-hearted man, but, while deliberating in much agitation, had the added horror of seeing the boat swayed first by the wind, then grating harshly upon the rock, at last disengaged, and drifted slowly out into the middle of the lake. The case now seemed absolutely hopeless.

As the hunters and trappers frequently go forth alone in the winter, and are absent several weeks, his stay would attract no attention at the settlement. No human dwelling was nearer than sixteen miles. Confronting, philosophically, therefore, his alarming situation, he scoured the island in search of fuel, which resulted in his finding a small quantity of a substance resembling peat. He now began the construction of a kind of earthwork, in semi-circular form, as a protection against the wind. Gathering enough of the peat to keep his hands and feet from suffering, as the early darkness drew on he wrapped himself in his coat as closely as possible, and lay down for the night. Long, dreary, dreadful were those hours, relieved by occasional snatches of sleep. Morning came, but it was barely welcome. It only revealed his desperate condition, and brought no intimation of relief.

The sun arose, climbed the sky, sank to his setting; no food, no fire, lest he should exhaust his stock of fuel; no sight or sound of hope. Night settled all its shadows upon his heart. Hungry, faint and wretched, he lighted his meagre fire and laid him down. That night he slept from sheer exhaustion. Again the morning; the live-long day, the sinking sun, the blank shadows, the famishing body, the howling wolves, the thoughts of horror, the visions of inevitable death! Thus dragged the hours till the sun arose. And thus, with fast failing powers, half bewildered mind, he lived, or rather was dying, through four days and five nights. During the fifth night the wind changed to the north, with bitter, freezing cold.

Now, thought the trapper, the end has come. Still, pitiless frosts fell from the crystal heavens. He had no hope of seeing the morning light. But what he foreboded was to be his destruction was God's wonderous provision for his salvation. The lake froze over, and on lifting his eyes in the morning, a new hope struggled with the sunbeams in his despairing soul. Stiffened, emaciated and unable to stand, he thought, "life is dear, and home is sweet. I can but die if I venture forth. To linger here another day is certain death. I will try the ice."

Crawling forth from his damp lurking place to the edge of the lake, he cautiously felt his way out upon the thin, transparent ice. As well from inability to stand as from a consideration of prudence, he crept on hands and knees over the treacherous surface. It bore his outspread weight. Slowly he moved, with trembling advance, for long seams shot from beneath him and clicked like the report of a pistol to the opposite shore. Once the faithless floor gave way at his knees and the chilling water came half way over him; but with the energy of a dying man, he sprang upon the unbroken surface, and with shivering fear again moved on. Again he broke through the ice! again he saved himself with desperate strength. But at length—joy unspeakable, and that almost overcame his exhausted nature—he drew himself upon the solid shore!

Resting awhile from his superhuman exertions, and now, with hope and home arising like twin stars in the East, he made his way slowly to the cabin where his stock of provisions had been left. There were bread and dried venison, but he could not eat. Nature had borne the famine too long. He laid down and was almost instantly buried in slumber, from which he did not wake until the shades of evening were drawing on. Then he found himself able to take refreshment, lay down and slept until broad daylight, rose and ate again, and in its strength felt his precarious way towards his home, which at eventide he reached, emaciated almost beyond recognition, more nearly dead than alive, but restored at last from the jaws of an unmarked grave, saved from the vulture and the wolf, and rejoicing in the bosom of wife and children about his own fireside.

THE LECTURING STYLE.

If a person is incapable of lecturing, in these times, he may set himself down as a pretty "poor shoat." Everybody does it, that is anybody, and those who modestly abstain are thought just nothing of at all. But for the Lecturing platform, where and how could individuals, who itch for careers outside of their private duties, find that vent for their talents which is proof against a fatal collapse? Hence the styles of lectures are about as various as the lecturers themselves. Those who imitate business are unconspicuously original in their very efforts at producing a perfect copy. One assumes the didactic role, and shouts pearls of instruction with the profuseness of a public fountain. Another tries the comic, and tells stories for half a dollar per head, that it ought to be worth twice that money to the patient victim to listen to. Another comes the dramatic, and rolls his r's like the reveille of a military camp. A fourth takes the part of a common scold, making the chips of other reputations fly thickly about him, but giving us no clue or splinter of his own. A fifth puts faith in dressing, the female lecturer particularly; and if ample skirts, rainbow colors, dazzling jewelry, profuse hairdressing, fine necks and arms, and all the et cetera of such attractions will not take, retires in disgust, and resolves in secret that the public doesn't know what a good thing really is. From a purely intellectual and instructive recreation, lecturing has caught the airs of the day and become another thing from the first design. There are superior thinkers and declaimers in the field, but the swarms of comedians, millinery people, jumping jacks, solemn bores, and common scolds threaten to overwhelm them by force of numbers.—Boston Sunday Times.

A JAPANESE EXECUTION.—The officers of the United States steamer Delaware were permitted to witness a Japanese crucifixion at Yokohama, which is thus described:

When the prisoner who was to be crucified had been placed on his back, on a stout wooden cross prepared for the occasion, he was securely lashed thereto, but not nailed. Then the sentence was read, and two stout men, with long spears, came forward. The one on the right side of the doomed man struck the point of his spear in very deliberately about two inches, and just under the ribs. Felt about awhile with it to ascertain that it was clear of all bones, and then with a powerful thrust upwards the head of the spear was sent through until it appeared on the top of the right shoulder. The man on the left side then did likewise.

The victim, who was a mere boy, yelled fearfully. He had murdered his mother by stabbing her thirteen times. After the two spears had been thrust through him, a third man came forward with a spear and thrust it through the criminal just where he had stabbed his mother. Thirteen times the spear went through his body, and the terrible performance ended.

STARTLING PHENOMENON.—The sun-gazers say that a phenomenon is in progress, whose results cannot be predetermined. A great wave of magnetic light is rolling from the sun towards the earth, and has already reached half the distance, or forty-five millions of miles. The wave flashes and coruscates at intervals, and so sensible are its effects, that two astronomers, one in London and the other in Oxford, making entirely independent observations, supposed that the dark glasses of their telescopes had been broken, or put out of range, so sharply did the light flash upon the eye. It is predicted that near the close of next year this wave will reach our terrestrial sphere. There are varied surmises what the effect may be. Some think it will produce convulsions, similar to those, or perhaps more intensified, which evidently have taken place in past times.—Phila. Star.

DID THE BEST HE COULD.—A bright youth, who was guilty of some offence, was told by his father to go into the next room and prepare himself for a severe flogging. The parent carried his horsewhip into the room to inflict chastisement, and found that the youngster had an immense hump on his back. "What on airth have you got on your back?" asked the wondering sire. "A leather apron," replied John, "three double. You told me to prepare myself for a severe flogging, and I guess I've done the best I could."

NEW YORK papers tell us money is "very close." We have seldom known a time when it was so far off.

LAND speculators have purchased nearly every acre for sale in Florida.

HOW THE DOCTOR GOT LOST IN A SNOW-DRIFT.

We think the following story "too good to keep," and, as we promise not to betray the hero's name and place of residence, we hope he will forgive us for telling how he got lost in a snow storm.

It was a pleasant place—the home of the Doctor just in the edge of the woods. The house was one of those neat little cottages where one always expects to find comfort, peace, and happiness.

It was almost among the trees, with which the ground had been so lavishly adorned. Some were so large that you would think they must be centuries old.

The Doctor and his wife lived here alone, with the exception of a boy whom the Doctor had taken to do chores for him, and to be company for his wife when he was attending his patients; for although, as I said, he was getting old, the people of the little village near could not have been persuaded to give up their faithful physician.

One day it had been snowing such a snow storm as you Western people seldom see. The beautiful white flakes seemed to vie with each other to see which should reach its destination soonest, and the sky above seemed one endless sheet of snow.

"Well," said the Doctor to his wife, as he returned from his round of calls, "I am glad there are not many sick just now, for I think home is the best place for an old man like me;" and he shook the snow from his great coat and handed it to Bruce to hang up, saying that he should not need it any more that night.

Just as he had seated himself at the tea table and his wife was pouring out his tea, a loud rap was heard at the door.

"It was some belated traveler," decided the Doctor as he rose to open the door.

"I want you to go and see my wife, Doctor," said the visitor as he seated himself by the fire.

"What! go ten miles such a night as this? It is impossible," retorted the Doctor.

"I fear she will die," said the man, "unless you do. I have a man here with me, and we have shovels; we will see you safe through if you will go."

The amount of it was, the Doctor went.

It is not my purpose to dwell on his ride there; for it was made comparatively easy by the aid of strong arms and shovels; nor of the sick woman, but of his journey home. The snow was still whirling thick and fast as the Doctor tucked himself snugly in his light cutter for the homeward trip, and started off briskly; for Nellie was anxious to get home to her warm stable.

The Doctor was not very well acquainted with the round-about way he came, and with the darkness and blinding snow he soon became bewildered. So after awhile thinking he had ridden farther than the distance to his home, he thought he would trust his horse to get him out of the difficulty, and gave Nellie full liberty to choose her own road; so after he had gone on for some time longer, Nellie stopped and whinnied. The Doctor unmuffled a little, and peered around in the darkness and snow.

"Why, Nellie, where are we?" he said. "This looks very much like Chestnut Ridge; yes, there's the opening in the trees, at the turn of the road on the brow of the hill—this must be Chestnut Ridge—eight miles from home. Well, Nellie, we may as well camp for the night, for we can't get home."

"How lucky that Bruce supplied us well with blankets," soliloquized the Doctor as he unhitched Nellie from the cutter fastened one of the blankets on her, and turned her loose to look out for herself. Then spreading a buffalo robe on the snow and turning the cutter up, he wrapped himself in his blankets, and crawled into his novel bed and was soon sound asleep.

His faithful dog was very uneasy all night at his master's absence, and bounded out at the first opportunity to look for him. Finding the cutter in such a novel condition, he began to bark furiously around it.

You can judge of the Doctor's astonishment, when he came out of his bed room, to find himself in his own door yard, and Nellie standing at the stable door, wondering, no doubt, why she was treated so coolly.—Western Rural.

FRIEND "JERRY" is a good-natured, civil fellow, who attends to his business and provides well for his family, but he has one little failing, in this, that when he goes to his home in the suburbs at night, he is usually more or less under the influence of contraband fluids. One night, a little after dark, he started for home with a nice turkey, safely done up in strong wrapping paper, under his arm. "Jerry" found the road from the station to his pretty cottage, some half a mile distant. He several times stumbled and fell over all sorts of obstructions in the path. Each time he fell he dropped his turkey, but contrived to pick it up again. On entering his house, he steadied himself as well as he was able, and said to his wife, "Here, wifey, I've got 'leven turkies for you." "Eleven turkies, Jerry! What do you mean? There's only one." "There must be 'leven turkies, wifey, for I fell down 'leven times, and every time I found a turkey. There must be 'leven turkies."

MEMORIZING.—It is a remark of Bacon's, that if we wish to commit anything to memory, we will accomplish more in ten readings if at each perusal we make the attempt to repeat it from memory, referring to the book only when the memory fails, than we would by a hundred readings in the ordinary way, and without any intervening trials. The explanation of this fact is that each effort to recall the passage secures to the subsequent perusal a more intense degree of attention; and it seems to be a law of our nature, not only that there is no memory without attention, but that the degree of memory is in a great measure, proportioned to the degree of the attention.

IF growers of cranberries can net one dollar per bushel, it is the most profitable crop that can be raised.

THE SQUIRE AND HIS WIFE.

The Squire had a friend to visit him on business, and was very much annoyed to be interrupted by his wife who came to ask him what he wanted for dinner.

"Go away! let us alone!" impatiently said the Squire.

Business detained the friend until after dinner time, and the Squire urged him to remain. The Squire was a generous provider, proud of his table, and he complacently escorted his friend to a seat. A little to the surprise of both, they saw nothing on the board but a huge dish of salad, which the good wife began quietly to dish up.

"My dear," said the squire; "where are the meats?"

"There are none to-day," said the good lady.

"No meats! What in the name of poverty. The vegetables, then. Why don't you have them brought in?"

"You didn't order any."

"Order? I don't order anything," said the amazed Squire.

"You forget," coolly answered the housewife. "I asked what we should have and you said, 'lettuce alone.' Here it is."

The friend burst into a laugh, and the Squire, after looking lugubrious a moment, joined him.

"Wife, I give it up. I owe you one. Here is the fifty dollars you wanted for that carpet which I denied you." The Squire forked over. "Now, let us have peace, and some dinner."

The good woman pocketed the paper, rang the bell and a sumptuous repast of fish, poultry and vegetables was brought in.

A few days afterwards the Squire remained working in his garden some time after the usual tea hour. His wife grew impatient of delay, and went to find him. His excuse, when asked what he was waiting for, threw her into a flutter of excitement.

"Some one's come to supper," she exclaimed. "Why didn't you tell me? I declare you are the provokingest man!"

And without asking which of his friends was expected, she hastened to change her dress and slick up her hair for the occasion. This done, she came out and found the Squire seated at the table reading his newspaper.

"Where's your company?"

"My company! I haven't any company."

"But you said you expected somebody to supper," exclaimed the indignant wife.

"My dear, I said no such thing. You asked what I was waiting for, and I said summons to come to supper—that's what I was waiting for, my dear, and I came at once."

"And you have made me go and change my dress. Oh, I'll pay you for this."

"No matter about it, my dear. I owed you, you remember, for that lettuce."

BURDENED WITH HUSBANDS.—While Conrad III., Emperor of Germany, was besieging Guelph, Duke of Bavaria, in the Castle of Weinsberg, his commander received a message one morning from Guelph's wife, promising that the court should instantly capitulate, provided she and the other women in the place, were allowed to come out with as much as each of them could carry, and go whither they pleased. Her request was granted; and great was the astonishment of the Emperor when he saw the astute ladies marching forth, not loaded with jewels and silver, but each, as he had expected, but each with her husband on her back. An accommodation with Guelph and his adherents was the result, and there were no more sieges in Bavaria during the reign of Conrad III.

A LEGEND.—The favorite of a Sultan threw a stone at a poor Dervish, who had requested alms. The insulted Santon dare not complain, but carefully searched for and preserved the pebble, promising himself he should find an opportunity, sooner or later, to throw it in his turn, at the imperious and pitiless wretch. Some time after he was told that the favorite was displaced, and, by order of the Sultan, led through the streets on a camel, exposed to the insults of the populace. On hearing this, he ran to fetch his pebble, but after a moment's reflection, cast it into a well. "I now perceive," said he, "that we ought never to seek revenge when our enemy is powerful, for then it is imprudent; nor when he is involved in calamity, for then it is mean and cruel."

A GENERATION.—A generation is the interval of time that elapses between the birth of a father and the birth of his son, and was generally used in computing considerable periods of time, both in sacred and profane history. The interval of a generation is consequently of uncertain length, and depends on the standard of human life, and whether generations are reckoned by eldest, middle or youngest sons. Thirty-three years have usually been allowed as the mean length of a generation, or three generations for every hundred years. In compiling pedigrees, great attention is necessary to the number of generations to any given period, as they form a guide to the probability of persons having sprung from any particular individual.

SEVEN SINS.—1. Refusing to take your own county paper.

2. Taking a paper and then not paying for it.

3. Not advertising.

4. Getting married and forgetting the printer.

5. Asking newspapers to publish matter that is for your own benefit without remuneration.

6. Reading copy on a compositor's case.

7. Never paying your subscription until the publisher goes to the trouble of asking for it.

A PITTSBURG inventor has constructed a stove for consumption of bituminous coal without producing smoke. The principle of the invention is to produce both an upward and a downward draft, meeting in the fire and causing a perfect combustion.

"DON'T trouble yourself to stretch your mouth any wider," said a dentist to a man who was extending his jaws frightfully, "as I intend to stand outside of it to draw your tooth."

SCENE IN COURT.

Recently, in a New Orleans court, a negro was called as a witness. The judge, who is noted for his austerity, held out the book, and the witness was sworn, and was, of course, expected to kiss the book. But the witness was unused to criminal proceedings, and entertained curious ideas of the manner and propriety of swearing, and stood erect.

"Why don't you kiss?" demanded the magistrate.

"Sar!"

"Aint you going to kiss?" was again inquired.

"Sar!" repeated the astonished darkey, evidently mistaking the meaning of the court, and surprised beyond measure at such an invitation.

"Kiss, I tell you!" thundered the judge.

"Yes, sar, yes, sar!" exclaimed the frightened and trembling darkey, nerving himself for the contemplated embrace, and without more ado the long arms of the son of Ham were thrown around the judicial neck, and before he could be prevented a stentorian smack resounded through the court room.

"Quit, you beast—help! help!" shouted the magistrate. But the witness enjoyed the luxury, and the embrace was renewed with unction.

"Take him off! take him off!" cried the court, while the loud shouts of the spectators testified their appreciation of the fun. At last, however, the officers of the court interfered, and the half strangled judge was rescued from the embrace of the literal witness.

PLANTS IN ROOMS.—A few words on the culture of plants in rooms may be beneficial to many persons. They should be placed in a situation where they can receive an abundance of light and air, otherwise they will become sickly.

Plants are frequently injured by injudicious watering. Some persons suppose that deluges of water afford a remedy for all evils to which plants are subject. This is a mistake. True, they require a considerable amount of moisture, but not one-half the quantity which is oftentimes applied. Evening is the best time to water them, and in every case cold water from a cistern or pump should be avoided. The water should be warmed by exposure to the sun, or in some other manner, by bringing it to the temperature of the atmosphere before it is used. Many plants are greatly retarded in their growth by cold water being poured upon them. The quantity to be applied varies with the size and nature of the flower; the ground should be thoroughly moistened, but not soaked. If the leaves should become infested with insects, some tobacco juice, mixed with water and sprinkled over them, will soon destroy these. The great feature of cultivating plants to promote their health is that which is equally efficacious with human beings—cleanliness.

LIGHT-HEARTED PEOPLE.—There are people who habitually make the best of things; not from a sense of duty, not from dislike of sympathy, not from any shrinking of pain on their account for others, but simply from a natural and unconquerable lightness of the heart. These people supply the oxygen of the moral atmosphere, and should be maintained at the public expense to keep it sweet and pure. Even if instead of being, as they generally are, active and otherwise estimable members of society, they did nothing but enjoy life, they would still be worth cultivating for the sake of the light and love which they kindle. The only difficulty is, how to regulate them. They are so irresistibly impelled to sing songs, that in a world where heavy hearts are unfortunately common, it is difficult always to keep the vinegar and nitre apart.

AN inquisitive urchin, the other day, says an exchange, while reciting a lesson from the Sermon on the Mount broke out: "Ma, did Christ get $2,000 a year for preaching?" "No, my child; he did not get anything." "Why didn't they pay him?" "Because he refused to preach politics. The devil offered him a big salary to do it, but he would not accept the call."

WITH a wife, her husband's faults should be sacred. A woman forgets what is due to herself when she condescends to that refuge of weakness—a female confidant. A wife's heart should be the tomb of her husband's failings, and his character far more valuable, in her estimation, than his life.

HIS DEFENCE.—A Frenchman, being hard up for a dinner, stole a pig. He was caught in the act, taken before a magistrate, and called upon for his defence, when he thus delivered himself:—"O, mon Dieu! I steal ze pig? No, sar, I never. Aha! you shall see. I tell ze pig, will he go wiz me? He says, oui! oui! and zen I take him. Is zat vat you call steal ze pig, ven he go viz his own consent?"

WARM FEET.—A nervous old wag, who thought he was dying, was assured by his nurse that he would not die so long as his feet were warm—such a thing was never heard of. "But I have heard of a man who died with very warm feet." "Who was he?" inquired the nurse. "John Rodgers," replied the wit.

TREATMENT OF THE SICK.—The greatest humanity we can show to the sick, is, to secure to them the most important remedies ever known, to wit: quietness, cleanliness, and pure air—these alone would cure three-fourths of all our diseases, but we will not use them, yet they are everywhere attainable, and cost nothing but a little trouble.

TOOTH PULLING EXTRA.—A lady in Sarnia was recently reading to her little son that passage of Scripture quoted from the Mosaic law, "An eye for an eye, a tooth for a tooth," when the boy exclaimed, "Mamma, what a time the dentists must have had then?"

NOTHING NEW.—There is nothing new under the sun. The paddle-wheel for boats is seen on the Assyrian slabs and in more than one European fresco. The bicycle was known in China more than two centuries ago, and the velocipede was known even before that in Europe.

A NEGRO boy stole a doll in Petersburg, Va., the other day, and while protesting his innocence unwittingly pressed it as he endeavored to hide it more completely under his shirt. The doll gave a loud squeak, and the little negro, who had never heard of crying dolls before, turned almost white and thought a miracle had been done in his case.

A WARNING to bald heads—"Death loves a shining mark."

FRIDAY, DEC. 17, 1869.

ATTORNEY GENERAL HOAR has been appointed by the President a Judge of the Supreme Court.

THE House of Congress on Wednesday, passed a resolution to adjourn for two weeks from the 22d instant.

THE President's message seems to have given intense delight to the Spaniards in Havana, and to have correspondingly depressed the friends of the Cuban cause.

LATEST returns from Texas indicate the election of a Conservative majority in the Legislature. On Governor it is impossible to decide, as there are some forty counties to be heard from.

IN the House, on Monday, Mr. Butler, from the Committee on Reconstruction, reported three bills looking to the early admission of the State of Virginia. There does not seem now to be much doubt of the admission of the State before the holidays, although the House has resolved to adjourn over from the 22d of December to the 4th of January.

THE Philadelphia Ledger holds a true and proper estimate of the financial policy laid down in the Message of the President and the report of Secretary Boutwell. It says: All that is said is unobjectionable to most readers, but the real test of all such results. Nobody is wiser on reading what those high functionaries say on this subject than they were before, as to any practical facts looking to the accomplishment or beginning of the desired result.

WITH Congress adjourned last [?] giving the Radical press made a great noise over the economy that had been manifested and the large reduction of expenses of the government shown by the appropriations made. It has resulted just as we expected. The Secretary of the Treasury has sent in a long list of items, in which he asks for large appropriations to cover deficiencies. These embrace almost every branch of the public service, and show plainly that the pretence for economy was all bosh.

GEN. GRANT is afflicted about the high tariff in one particular only. He thinks the duty on Russian hemp too high. Doubtless it is but the reason for his special anxiety in this behalf does not so clearly appear. When the next Democratic administration comes into power, it will need a large supply of that commodity to redress the errors of the present Radical one, and no degree of tension will so stretch hemp as to make the existing stock adequate to our needs. But just now we do not see any chance that that need will be immediately answered.—World.

ON the motion to table the bill of Mr. Ingersoll of Illinois in the House of Representatives at Washington on Saturday last, Messrs. Cessna, Gilfillan and Negley, of this State, voted No. This bill provides for the issue of forty four millions of greenbacks in redemption of that amount in bonds bearing gold interest. Cessna, Gilfillan and Negley have, then, it seems, gone over to Pendleton! If Young Greenbacks can carry this load nothing can prevent him from winning the presidential race. What do the anti-repudiation Radicals of the Sixteenth Congressional district think of their Pendletonian representative? What will those austere sticklers for the rigid observance of the pledged faith of the government, the editors of the Somerset Herald, Bedford Inquirer and Franklin Repository say to this tendency of the late Mr. Cessna toward the ranks of the repudiators?—Patriot.

FOR this and this together. The President is about to appoint enough Radicals to the Supreme Court to assure his party the majority in that tribunal. At the same time Congress is proposing to extinguish the power of that court to declare unconstitutional any of its political acts. From which is a double inference. Congress is afraid of an inquiry into its own laws, and is also afraid to trust its own chosen statesmen whom it will make judges with an opportunity to traverse the political acts of the national legislature. A politician made a judge for life is so apt to become both learned and decent that he inevitably dons Democracy "etc. he is aware." All this muzzling of a co-ordinate branch of the government is fine amusement for the gamblers in law and the brothers-in-law who now run affairs. The day of judgment, however, will only come the sooner for all this usurpation.—World.

A CHILD BURNT TO DEATH.—On Monday afternoon, about 2 o'clock, Maggie, a little daughter of Henry Gauter, about five years old, residing on the Wagner's Gap road, was burned to death in a most horrible manner. The father of the child was out at the stable attending to the stock. The mother went on an errand to her father-in-law's leaving three children in the room, the deceased, a sister two years younger and an infant in the cradle. She was gone about fifteen minutes and on her way back was told that the house was on fire. She ran in and found the little girl lying on the floor, with all her clothing burned off except a few shreds around the shoulders. A charred stick was lying on the stove hearth and a chair in which a younger sister had been sitting was on fire. When the mother picked Maggie up she asked if her sister had set her on fire. The little sufferer replied as best she could "No she had done it herself." She was burned to a crisp about the body and lived about an hour after she was discovered during which time her sufferings were intense. Dr. Zitzer was called in, but could do nothing for her. This is another terrible warning to parents not to leave young children alone where they have access to fire. We have had several similar fatal accidents to record, and trust that this sad affair may not be without its good results in teaching greater carefulness in this respect.—Carlisle Volunteer.

"The School Festival."—This beautiful little original Magazine is now ready. It is published quarterly and devoted entirely to school exhibitions, recitations, dialogues, tableaux, charades, etc., and is destined to have great popularity. It is the only magazine of the kind we know of, has been greatly needed, and meets the want. It is full of good things for the large as well as for the smaller children—all original and all first class. It is published by Alfred L. Sewell & Co., the publishers of The Little Corporal, Chicago, Ill., and costs 50 cents a year. Single copy 15 cents.

NEW YORK AND THE FIFTEENTH AMENDMENT.

At the recent election in New York the question of unlimited negro suffrage was submitted to the people, in connection with the proposed new State Constitution and they decided it unequivocally against it. After stating this fact the World goes on to say: What the people of this State put into their own sovereign capacity they surely do not wish to have forced upon them by the authority of the Federal government. It was demonstrated that the ratification given last winter did not express the judgment of the State and it is the clear duty of the new Legislature as the authorized organ of the popular will to communicate to the Federal Secretary of State the deliberate rejection of the fifteenth amendment by the State of New York. The Legislature by which it was ratified was elected without any reference to this question. The Republican national platform had then recently declared that the control of the elective franchise in the loyal States properly belongs to the people of those States, and this formal disclaimer by the Republican party of any intention to nationalize the suffrage made the proposal of the amendment by Congress and its ratification by the Legislatures acts of deliberate bad faith. The signal rebuke of this perfidy in the next ensuing election makes it the duty of a faithful Legislature to rescind the fraudulent ratification.

But the Republicans tell us that such a revocation will be null, inasmuch as the ratification will be equally counted whether it is formally rescinded or not. Counted by whom? Whom do they suppose, by General Grant's Secretary of State, who is biased by his Republican associations, but who made him the final judge of such a question. Not the Federal Constitution, not the laws, not any judicial decision. In this matter he is merely a ministerial officer, having no more authority to pass upon the right of a State to rescind a ratification than any other citizen. When Secretary Seward published the adoption of the fourteenth amendment, he simply recited the facts as they had been officially certified to him. Two States had rescinded their ratifications and Mr. Seward thought it his duty to state that fact and tell which particular States had taken such action, which he needed not have done if it were a settled point that a ratification cannot be revoked. According to our recollection there were three fourths of the whole number without the rescinded ratifications, but if there were not the validity of the fourteenth amendment is open to judicial review, and Secretary Seward's recital supplies the facts on which the Supreme Court will base its decision. Of course no State can rescind its ratification after a proposed amendment has become a part of the Constitution, but it is preposterous to suppose that it is irrevocably bound by it before.

It follows from the whimsical doctrine of the Republican journalists on this subject, that if every one of the States which have ratified the fifteenth amendment should revoke their ratifications it would nevertheless become a binding part of the Constitution if four or five other States should ratify it. For if one State is unalterably bound by a ratification once given every State must be equally bound in like manner and if we follow out the principle to its legitimate consequences it will land us in the flagrant absurdity of an amendment becoming valid which has the deliberate approval of only a single State. There are now thirty-seven States and it requires the concurrence of twenty eight to adopt an amendment. Let us suppose that thirty six of the thirty seven Legislatures act on a proposed amendment, twenty seven of them ratifying and nine rejecting it. Suppose further that while the one remaining State has not yet acted the twenty seven revoke their ratifications, making thirty six which, as their deliberate final conclusion disapprove the amendment. Now if the Republican doctrine be tenable, a subsequent ratification by the one tardy State would make the amendment a part of the Constitution against the unanimous final decision of the other thirty six. Even if a period of fifty years should elapse before the one State ratified, the whole country would be bound. An assumption which leads to such absurd consequences, is of course unsound.

But who, besides the Secretary of State, is to judge whether New York can revoke her ratification? First the State of New York itself. If there should be twenty seven unrevoked ratifications and the revoked ratification of New York should be counted to make up the requisite twenty eight, this State would treat the amendment as a nullity, and its inspectors of election would refuse to receive the negro votes. It is not yet very apparent how the negro votes are to be forced into the ballot boxes if the inspectors refuse them pursuant to the constitution and laws of the State.

In the next place Congress would decide on the validity of an amendment which had been declared adopted only by counting revoked ratifications. If under such circumstances, a Democratic Congress should treat the fifteenth amendment as a nullity and decline to pass laws for its enforcement, what could the Republican party do about it?

Lastly, if a Republican Congress should pass laws for punishing State officers who refused negro ballots, the penalties could not be inflicted without a previous trial, which would bring the validity of the amendment before the judicial tribunals, and enable the question to be carried up to the Supreme Court of the United States for an authoritative decision. The fact that lawyers so able and eminent as Charles O'Conor, George Ticknor Curtis and Reverdy Johnson have published their opinion that a State may legally revoke its ratification, creates a reasonable presumption that the judges of the Supreme Court would take the same view if the question should ever come before them.

SENATOR Trumbull has made a good move in introducing a measure declaring it a misdemeanor for a Senator or Member of Congress to recommend the appointment of any person to office unless requested by the President or a head of department. As matters now stand, Senators and Members devote most of their time in running around the departments soliciting appointments to office. This is certainly undignified as far as the Senators are concerned. They are called upon to pass upon the appointments of the President in executive session, and this fact alone should preclude them from taking a part in securing the original appointment.

CONGRESSIONAL.

The proceedings of Congress were interesting yesterday week. In the Senate Mr. Drake introduced a bill to fix a uniform time for the election of President and members of Congress. It designates the second Tuesday in October as the day of the Presidential election, and also of the Congressional elections in all the States. Mr. Carpenter introduced a bill raising the salary of the Chief Justice of the United States to $12,000 per annum, and of the Associate Justices to $10,000 per annum. Mr. Trumbull reported back with amendments Sumner's bill to consolidate the Supreme Court. Mr. Sumner lugged in the daily nigger this time in the shape of a movement to repeal the charter of the Medical Society of the District of Columbia, because it black balled a black applicant for membership. The apostle of negro equality avowed his detestation of the heresy that a gentleman has the right to choose his own company. Mr. Anthony announced his determination to overhaul the public printing by which enormous sums of the public money are squandered. In the House of Representatives Mr. Shanks introduced a bill to coerce the State of Georgia to adopt the fifteenth amendment; Mr. Stevenson, a bill to take the revenue duty off of tea, coffee, molasses, rice, salt, lumber, hides and pig iron; and Mr. Ingersoll a bill to authorize the additional issue of forty four millions of dollars in greenbacks. A debate springing up upon the latter it was withdrawn. Mr. John Fox, of New York, asked leave to bring in a resolution to create a special committee to inquire into the causes of the recent gold panic in that city, and whether the President, Secretary of the Treasury or other government official was interested therein. Several Radicals promptly objected. The House then went into Committee of the Whole upon the Census bill and Butler's amendment to have the work done by the Internal Revenue Department. During the debate Butler complimented New York City with the remark that it was a living mass of corruption and fraud. Mr. Fernando Wood wound him up with a shot about his indictment in the courts there for robbing people of spoons and plate. After this passage at arms the House put Butler down by rejecting his amendment. An effort to adjourn over till Monday was defeated.

There is a bill before the Banking and Currency Committee of Congress authorizing the Secretary of the Treasury to issue four per cent. bonds to the amount of $1,200,000,000, running for twenty years, and with the lawful money realized from the sale of said bonds to buy in or pay off any gold interest bearing bonds of the United States, which, when purchased, shall be cancelled. The House Committee on Indian Affairs have instructed a bill making the Indian tribes incapable of concluding treaties with the United States, and prohibiting the enforcement of any contracts made between the parties until after their approval by Congress. This bill if passed will change the whole Indian policy of the government.

SENATOR LOWRY AND THE TEMPERANCE QUESTION.

The Lock Observer contains a long and characteristic letter from Senator Lowry, in reply to the Hon. Howell Powell of Crawford county, on the subject of the new temperance movement to submit the question of liquor prohibition to the people of each ward, borough and township of the State for decision for themselves. Mr. Lowry reviews the question at length, as well as his course on it while in the legislature. He refers to a decision of the Supreme Court in the case of Parker vs. the Commonwealth, in Barr's Reports, page 507, in which it was decided that an act of Assembly passed in 1846 giving the citizens of certain counties the power to decide by a vote whether the sale of vinous and spirituous liquors shall be continued within such counties, such legislation is unconstitutional and void."

The Senator concludes: "This decision being in the way, of course it put an end to my vote. But were it not so, I should have serious doubts of the passage of an act authorizing the people in their several localities respectively to decide the question for themselves. Localities that did not really need prohibition would obtain it, while those localities which require it most would have the flood gates opened upon them. The sale of ardent spirits, in many cases, would be practised on one side of the street, while it is unlawful on the other. Neighborhood spites, jealousies, commercial wrongs, political manœuvering and personal hates I fear, would be its fruits."

THE Œcumenical Council of the Catholic Church assembled in Rome on Wednesday week. The opening ceremonies attending this august convocation of prelates from all parts of the world, occupied five hours, and were attended by the liveliest demonstrations in Rome. The procession was one of the grandest in history.

The Council is called the First Council of the Vatican, and will pass into history as the Twenty first Œcumenical Council of the Church, counting from the first held at Nice in the year 325, to the last Council of Trent, the twentieth, which met in the year 1545, and terminated its sitting in the year 1563, three hundred and six years since.

The present assemblage will be more largely attended and consequently more universally Catholic, than any of those which have preceded it. The attendance now numbers about 650 fathers in council. At Trent there were only 3 patriarchs, 32 archbishops and 228 bishops. At the end of the council there were only 25 archbishops and 168 bishops. At the Council of Trent, the last previous occasion, America was not represented in the council, as the Papal hierarchy had then been scarcely established in the newly discovered soil. Now, America sends a full delegation to Rome—ten archbishops, (seven from the United States) and over seventy bishops answering from North America alone, exclusive of the episcopacy of Mexico.

The objects of the council have been variously stated, but further than what was officially announced in the Papal letters, nothing definite is known of them. It is certain that the discipline of the Church will be revised in many points.

A Model Parlor Magazine.—For beauty of typography, artistic engravings, and high toned literary articles, together with a large and beautiful display of the Fashions, Demorest's Monthly Magazine is certainly unsurpassed. The January number just received, in addition to unusual holiday attractions, has a fine steel Portrait of both Mr. and Mme. Demorest. The rich display of novelties offered in Demorest's Monthly would seem to be enough to secure a circulation sufficient to satisfy its publishers, but in addition we see they propose to give a very large and fine engraving to each subscriber, valued at $10. The Engraving alone would make a very appropriate Holiday or Birthday gift, but when added to the costly Picture the best Parlor Magazine is included, to be a monthly reminder of the friendly feeling of the giver, there is certainly no better way of investing $3.—Address Demorest's Monthly, 838 Broadway, N. Y.

Wood.—A few cords of good Wood wanted at this office on subscription. The sooner the better.

Thanks.—Members of Congress R. J. Haldeman and John Cessna, and Clerk McPherson have our thanks for Congressional documents.

Hotel Sold.—Mr. Henry Ruth of Hanover, has sold the Franklin House, in that place to Mr. L. B. Houser, of New Oxford, for $5,000.

Tourists.—We notice in a North Carolina paper that Messrs. David Stewart, Christian Frey, Benjamin Deardorff, Francis Ogden and J. J. Bushecker of this county are on a tour through that State.

Fine Porkers.—Mr. Jacob M. Gilbert, of this place killed a pair of very fat porkers the other day, one weighing [?]00 and the other 125 pounds. Mr. Peter Beitler slaughtered one weighing 191 pounds.

Mr. A. J. Kosa, of Butler township, delivered a hog at the Alms house on Wednesday, which weighed 189 pounds.

—The following paragraph, from the Westminster Sentinel, rather "beats" the above:

Mr. Charles McFadden at Pleasant Mills Carroll county slaughtered on Monday, December 13th, a hog 17 months and 25 days old, which weighed 674½ lbs., also at the same time and place two others, one weighing 408 lbs. and the other 386 lbs.

Boy Killed.—We learn that on Friday of last week, a boy aged about 15 years, son of Mr. Daniel Hamm residing in North Codorus township on the line of the Hanover Branch Railroad, was killed instantly by a vicious horse kicking him in the head, at his father's stable, while engaged loosening the animal preparatory to taking him to water. Horse Stolen and Thief Captured.—On the night of the 4th inst., a very valuable horse was stolen from the premises of Mr. Jonas Shockey, in Washington township. Mr. Shockey made immediate pursuit and found his horse and the thief at Berryville, Clark county, Virginia. The thief was found in bed. He had bills posted already, giving notice that the horse would be offered at public sale. He was arrested and lodged in jail at Berryville.—Ibid.

Teachers' Institute.—The Adams County Teachers' Institute adjourned on Friday night.

The sessions were throughout interesting, and much valuable information was imparted. The attendance of teachers, directors and spectators was good every day and evening—at times crowding the court room to its utmost capacity. The meeting seemed to be very pleasant to all concerned, and all appreciated the advantages it afforded. We conclude our sketch of the proceedings.

WEDNESDAY.—Morning Session.—Opened with prayer by Rev. Mr. Jameson. Music by Institute.

On motion of Miss Kate Getz the Query Box was opened.

The committee on social intercourse reported that they were attending to their duty to the best of their ability.

Prof. Kidd conducted an elocutionary drill of an hour's length.

Prof. Raub occupied the last hour in a lecture on Grammar.

Afternoon Session.—Music by Institute.—On motion of Rev. Houghtelin, a committee of five was appointed to revise the constitution. Committee—Rev. Houghtelin, Aaron Sheely, Mr. Seabrooks, Miss Hillie Wierman and Miss Ollie F. Heinard.

The Library committee offered a report, in which they proposed "The Adams County Teachers' Library Association," as the name, that all teachers in the county are members, that donations are solicited, that a collection be taken during Institute, for the benefit of Library, and that a committee be appointed to make all necessary arrangements and take the affair in charge. Committee—J. Howard Wert, Geo. Grammer and Miss Jennie Hamilton. On motion of Mr. Sheely, the motion was adopted. On motion of Mr. G. Grammer, a committee of three was appointed to select music and have it printed for the next Institute. Committee—Geo. Grammer, Paul Hersh and Miss Rachel Wright.

Mr. L. H. Grammer read an essay on "The Shady Side of a Teacher's Profession."

Hon. Henry Houck, Deputy State Superintendent, was introduced and delivered a short address on the duty of Teachers attending Institute.

Prof. Montgomery gave the Institute a practical talk on Grammar, Arithmetic, Reading, Geography and Composition.

Prof. Kidd filled his hour in an elocutionary drill.

Evening Session.—Music by choir, assisted by Prof. Gundrum.

Prof. Raub was introduced and held the attention of the large audience in a lecture on "Life and Living."

A collection was taken for the Library.

Essays were read by Miss Warren, subject "Sunny Side of the Teacher's Profession," Miss Heinard, subject, "Education of Women," Miss McMillen, subject, "The Teacher's Mission."

Prof. Kidd rendered a poem.

On motion of Mr. Wert, a vote of thanks was tendered Prof. Montgomery, for his able services.

The Session was closed with instrumental music.

THURSDAY.—Morning Session.—Opened with prayer by Rev. Dr. Schmucker.

Mr. Sheely presented the Teachers' Library Association with 38 volumes.

On motion of J. Howard Wert a vote of thanks was tendered Mr. Sheely for the valuable present.

On motion of P. D. W. Hankey, it was resolved that when the Institute adjourn it do so on Friday evening.

On motion of W. A. Carrens [?], the Query Box was opened.

The County Superintendent conducted a class drill in History—class composed of pupils from the Gettysburg High School.

Prof. Kidd read "Scott and the Veteran."

The audience was dismissed and the Institute held a social meeting.

The thanks of the Institute were tendered Prof. Brooks, Prof. Kidd and Prof. Raub.

The committee on resolutions reported the following, which were adopted:

1. Resolved, That time has tested and proven the utility of our County Institute and that we consider it an indispensable aid in securing the efficient working of our system of popular education.

2. That our thanks are due to the citizens of Gettysburg, for the manner in which they have entertained the lady teachers and also for their encouragement by their attendance at the Institute.

3. That our thanks are due the Commissioners for the use of the Court house, and we regard it as an evidence of their interest in the Common School cause.

4. The thanks of the Institute are due Prof. Ferrier for his entertaining lecture on "The Loneliness of Hamlet," and also for his instructive discourse on Words.

5. That we tender our sincere thanks to the lecturers who have been with us during the week and think it highly complimentary to the good judgment of our worthy County Superintendent, that he secured the aid of such efficient co-operators with himself in rendering our Institute not only instructive but entertaining.

7. That the thanks of the association are due to the proprietors of the different hotels for their kindness in making a deduction in fare of male Teachers.

8. We would also extend our thanks to the managers of the Gettysburg and Hanover Railroad for the deduction of fare of Teachers attending Institute.

9. That the Hon. Henry Houck Deputy State Superintendent has deservedly won the thanks of Teachers and Directors present and only regret that every director in the county was not present to receive his practical hints so clearly and yet so kindly spoken.

10. That the thanks of the members be extended to the officers of the convention who have done their duty so faithfully.

11. That a vote of thanks be tendered to Prof. Gundrum, the choir, String Band and the class from the Public Schools of Gettysburg, who enlivened the sessions of the present Institute by their soul stirring strains.

12. That we regard the unusually large attendance of both teachers and directors at the present Institute as an evidence of increasing interest in the cause of education and gladly hail it as the dawn of a better day for Common Schools in Adams county.

13. That the Institute tender heartfelt thanks to Mr. Sheely, ex-Superintendent, for the efficient aid he has rendered in various ways, and that we appreciate the interest he has manifested in the Institute by his presence at every session, and also beg leave to assure him that his services in the past are not forgotten, and that we think the best manner of expressing the gratitude we feel will be for each teacher to improve the "munificent donation" he has made in the way of books, by making the contents of each their own.

14. That Mr. Wert, our present County Superintendent, has shown by the happy method he has followed in conducting this, his first Institute, that he is admirably adapted for the responsible office he has been called upon to fill, and that the cause of education is no secondary matter in his estimation, and all unite in the hearty wish, that he may long live and win laurels in the good work that lies so near his heart, and forgive him for robbing our Institute of a member, hoping she will prove to him a help meet in deed and in truth.

15. That last but not least, we are hugely indebted to Prof. Brooks for rendering the closing exercises of the last day and evening, so eminently a feast of reason and a flow of soul.

OUR COMMON SCHOOLS—NO. 4.

EXCELSIOR.

Mr. Editor:—Allow me, through the columns of your valuable paper to continue the series of articles on Educational subjects, commenced some time since. The bustle of Institute week has passed away and one hundred and fifty nine teachers are again engaged this week in training the youth of the county. Of these teachers one hundred and forty four were present during all or a portion of the week. Let us hope that all have gone to their great work the better qualified for it. I have been highly gratified by this unusually large attendance, and by the hearty co-operation which I have received from all of the teachers of the county. Let me very briefly call the attention of the Teachers to a few points which were omitted in the hurry of Institute week.

I have been delighted to ascertain that the first of these series of articles, which related more particularly to neatness in the school room has produced great fruit. One evidence of this was the large number of inquiries made during the week in regard to mottoes for the decoration of the school-room. For the accommodation of the Teachers I have purchased fifty sets at the lowest wholesale rates viz: one half dollar per set. I can thus furnish them to Teachers at just one-half the retail price. Any who desire to secure these mottoes can have them by sending their names. I will forward them when I can do so, or bring them along when visiting the schools. I have no pecuniary interest in the matter, as I furnish the mottoes to the Teachers at the lowest wholesale rates at which I can buy them, for them. Let every Teacher in the county try a set of cheap mottoes during the present winter. Let them carefully note the effect in making the room more cheerful. Let them watch the effect upon the scholars committed to their care—and I do not believe that they will ever in the future be willing to dispense with them.

I will mention another method within the reach of all by which you can not only benefit your schools indirectly but yourselves directly and materially. I refer to a careful reading of our excellent School Journal, the official organ of the State Department for Schools. Every Teacher should read it. A dollar could not be better expended in any other way. I will be happy to forward subscriptions for all who do not desire to attend to it themselves.

In conclusion, my warmest thanks are due in behalf of the Teachers of the county, to those Directors who have generously granted the time.

New Cooking Stove.—The attention of Housekeepers is invited to the EXCELSIOR PENN COOK STOVE, which has recently been brought into the market, and bids fair to throw all other Stoves into the shade. This Stove took the first premium at the State Fair held in Harrisburg last fall. Among its peculiar merits are the large Oven and Flues, and general simplicity, not being encumbered with unnecessary appendages, which in many stoves only enhance the cost without being of practical use. For beauty of design, quality of material, and general excellence, it cannot be excelled. The price is lower than any other first class Cook Stove in market, and yet is warranted to cook and bake equal to the best. The Excelsior Penn Cook can be seen at the Wareroom of Col. C. H. Buehler, on Carlisle street, Gettysburg, who is the Agent for this place. Call and see it. tf

1870 "THE WORLD." 1870.

"The ability of THE WORLD is beyond question." — Raleigh (N. C.) Sentinel.

"We regard it the ablest Democratic newspaper in the nation." — St. Joseph (Mo.) Herald.

"The New York WORLD, the ablest Democratic Journal in the United States." — Cincinnati Times.

"The leading Democratic Journal in the country, and as able as it is eminent, the New York WORLD." — Boston Traveller.

"The New York WORLD, the best edited paper on the continent, is wonderfully terrible in good things." — Raleigh Sentinel.

"The New York WORLD, the ablest, most influential and most widely circulated Democratic newspaper in the country." — Syracuse Journal.

"THE NEW YORK WORLD — THE WORLD is now beyond question the best newspaper published in New York City." — Courier, East Saginaw, Mich., Sept 2, 1869.

"We always read THE WORLD with hearty admiration of its superior ability, often with warm appreciation of its eloquently uttered sentiments." — [illegible] Lancing Gazette.

"Those who want a Democratic paper will find THE WORLD on the whole, the soundest, most entertaining, and complete newspaper in that side of the house." — Chronicle, Penn Yan, N. Y.

THE WEEKLY WORLD,

a large quarto sheet, printed throughout in large type and published every Wednesday morning, has now the largest circulation of any weekly newspaper in the United States with, possibly, a single exception. Among its prominent features are

1. ITS VERY FULL AND ACCURATE MARKET REPORTS, embracing the Live Stock markets of New York, Albany, Brighton, Cambridge, and Philadelphia, the New York Country Produce Market and General Produce Markets of the country, and full reports of the New York Money Market. Each of these reports is compiled with great care and contains the latest quotations that can be obtained up to the time of putting the paper to press.

2. ITS AGRICULTURAL DEPARTMENT, which contains each week articles on practical and scientific farming that are of great value to American farmers. A special feature of this department is a weekly summary of the condition of the Hop Market at home and abroad.

3. A verbatim report of the proceedings of the Farmers' Club of the American Institute is printed in each issue of the Weekly WORLD the day after the meeting of the Club. By this arrangement the reports appear in the Weekly WORLD one week in advance of its publication in any other weekly paper.

4. A portion of the Weekly WORLD is reserved for family reading matter, including original and selected stories, poems, Waifs of Humor, and extracts from books and periodicals. Particular attention will be given to this department during the year 1870.

5. A special feature of the Weekly WORLD is a carefully compiled summary of the news of each week. It is made so complete that no one who reads it can fail of being well posted on all the important news of the day.

THE SEMI-WEEKLY WORLD,

published Tuesday and Friday, is a large quarto sheet, containing all the news published in the Daily WORLD, with the exception of such local reports as may be of no interest to non-residents of New York City. Its market reports are as full as those of the Daily edition, and it contains, besides interesting literary matter, on Friday of each week a full report of the Farmers' Club.

THE DAILY WORLD

contains all the news of the day that can be obtained by mail and telegraph from all parts of the world, and thorough discussions of all topics of interest.

THE WORLD ALMANAC FOR 1870

THE WORLD ALMANAC for 1870 will contain a vast quantity of political information of use to every voter, such as cannot be obtained in no other publication. It will print full official returns of every election held in 1869, the vote of New York State by election districts and of Connecticut by towns, the names and party standing of candidates for each branch of the New York Legislature, lists of members of the United States Senate and House of Representatives, of Governors and [illegible] and local elections in 1869, and a complete summary of all occurrences during the past year, as well as political information will have to equal.

MERCHANT TAILOR,

CHAMBERSBURG STREET, GETTYSBURG.

THE undersigned, of the late firm of George Jacobs & Bro., would most respectfully inform his friends and the public generally, that he has opened a Merchant Tailoring establishment in Chambersburg street, next door to the old place, and three doors east of the Keystone House, where he will be happy to wait on all who may patronize him. His stock of CLOTHS, CASSIMERS, VESTINGS, TRIMMINGS, &c., will be found choice and cheap — very desirable to select from.

GOODS MADE UP with dispatch, as well when bought at other stores as at his own. The very best work will be made — good fits and substantial sewing — and nothing will be deemed too much trouble to render satisfaction in every case.

The latest New York Fashions regularly received. Cutting done, as usual.

A share of public patronage is solicited, and no effort spared to deserve it.

A PACIFIC RAILWAY

G O L D L O A N .

$6,500,000.

WE beg leave to announce that we have accepted the agency of the Kansas Pacific Railway Company for the sale of its

NEW SEVEN PER CENT. THIRTY YEAR GOLD LOAN, FREE FROM TAX.

This Loan amounts to $6,500,000

First Mortgage Land Grant and Sinking Fund Bonds

secured upon the extension of the Railway from near Sheridan, in Kansas, to Denver, Colorado, a distance of 237 miles, of which 12 miles are completed, and the rest is under construction. It is also a Mortgage upon the Road, the Rolling Stock and Franchise of this first class Railway, besides now running through the State of Kansas,

And in Successful Operation for 437 Miles west of the Missouri River, and earning already enough to meet all of its expenses and existing obligations, besides

More than the Interest upon this New Loan.

In addition to this, the Bonds are also secured by a first mortgage of the

GOVERNMENT LAND GRANT OF THREE MILLION ACRES

extending in alternate sections on either side of the track from the 394th mile post in Kansas to Denver. The proceeds of the sale of these Lands to be invested by the Trustees in the [illegible] per cent. Bonds themselves up to 12[illegible] or in U. S. Bonds, as A Sinking Fund for the Redemption of the Bonds.

The land embraces some of the finest portions of the magnificent Territory of Colorado, including a coal field and pinery. The Company has as an asset another tract of

THREE MILLIONS OF ACRES IN THE STATE OF KANSAS, and although not pledged as a security for this Loan, their possession adds largely to the Company's wealth and credit. We estimate the Value of the Company's Property, covered by this Mortgage, at $23,000,000 net, while the Loan is merely $6,500,000.

The Bonds have

THIRTY YEARS TO RUN,

from May 1, 1869, and will pay

Seven Per Cent. Interest in Gold, semi annually, on May 1 and Nov. 1, and are

Free from Government Taxation,

the Company paying the tax.

The principal of the Loan is made payable in Gold in the City of New York, but each coupon will be at option of the holder, without notice, at the following rates:

Payable in Frankfort, London or New York,

On $1000 Bond in New York $35 (gold) each half year.

On $1000 Bond in London £7 5s. 10d. each half year.

On $1000 Bond in Frankfort 87 fl. [illegible] each half year.

The Agents of the Loan, before accepting the trust, had the condition of the Road and the country through which it runs carefully examined. They are happy to give the Loan an unqualified endorsement as a

FIRST-CLASS INVESTMENT,

in every respect perfectly sure and in some essentials very

Better than Government Securities.

The Bonds will be sold for the present at 96, and Accrued Interest, both in Currency,

the Agents reserving the right to advance the rate.

The attention of investors is invited to these well secured Bonds, which we recommend as one of the most profitable investments in the market.

Gold and Government Securities taken in payment at their market value without commission.

NEWSPAPERARCHIVE®

NEWSPAPERARCHIVE®

HOW THE FRENCH FATTEN THEIR POULTRY.

A very singular mode of fattening poultry has been for some time successfully pursued in France. A [illegible] building says the [illegible] is admirably ventilated, and with the light partially excluded, is fitted up with circular cages in tiers rotating on a central axis, and capable of being moved [illegible] which are so arranged that each bird has as it were, a separate stall, containing a perch. The birds are placed with their tails converging to a common centre, while the head of each may be seen in front, as a single ray in a segment of the central axis. Each bird is fastened to its cell by the feet, which prevent movement except of the head and wings, without causing pain. When the feeding time comes, the bird is enveloped in a wooden case, from which the head and neck alone appear, and which is popularly known as its "paletot," by which means all unnecessary struggling is avoided. The attendant [illegible] the head in her left hand, and gently presses the beak, in order to open it. Then with her right, she introduces into the gullet a tube about the size of a finger. This tube is united to a flexible pipe, which communicates with the dish in which the food has been placed, and from which the desired quantity is instantaneously injected into the stomach. The food [illegible] process is so short that two hundred birds can be fed by one person in an hour. The food is a liquid paste composed of Indian corn and barley saturated with milk. It is administered three times a day, in quantities varying according to the condition of each bird. The food seems to be very satisfactory, for if any chance to fall they devour it all as soon as they are released from their paletots. The poultry house is well ventilated, but of course it is impossible for any place where six hundred fowls are confined to be entirely free from smell. It takes about a fortnight to fatten a bird by this method. Before being killed the birds are left in a dark but well ventilated chamber for twenty four hours without food. Each fowl is then taken up by the feet, is wrapped up so as to prevent all struggling, and then [illegible] in the throat, its death [illegible] instantaneous. The blood is then allowed to flow from it, and finally, after being plucked, washed and cleaned, it is wrapped in a damp cloth and is ready for sale. From forty to forty fowls are thus killed and sold daily.

SUCCESS OF THE ODESSA WHEAT.—The Odessa Wheat is one of the important items of the department of agriculture that is coming into notice and [illegible]. It was stated, says the Lake City (Minn.) Leader, by Peter Martin, of Dakota county, four years ago from a small package of seed sent him by Hon. [illegible] Donnelly and has been grown exclusively on his farm till this year for the purpose of giving it a reliable test. The qualities evinced by this test are as follows: It is a thin hulled, light colored wheat, and makes from five to ten per cent. more flour to the bushel than the common varieties, and of a quality that housekeepers would take for the best winter wheat flour. It is not recommended for an extraordinary yield, like most new cereals, the average of some ten acres last year having been twenty three and a half bushels to the acre, including an acre or so on a sandy knoll that suffered very badly from drouth. But it appears to be more reliable for a crop, tilling out better, and shrinks less than other kinds. It is a [illegible] headed wheat somewhat like the Fife in this respect, and in the early stages of its growth has a habit of spreading, low, like winter wheat in the fall. Farmers in Dakota county express the opinion that it is destined to supersede all other wheat in Minnesota.

THE OVARIUM.—[illegible] says: It has been ascertained that the ovarium of a fowl is composed of six hundred ovula or eggs, therefore a hen, during the whole of her life, cannot possibly lay more than six hundred, which, in a natural course, are distributed over nine years in the following proportion:

First year after birth	15 to 20
Second year after birth	100 to 120
Third year after birth	120 to 135
Fourth year after birth	100 to 115
Fifth year after birth	60 to 80
Sixth year after birth	50 to 60
Seventh	[illegible] to 40
Eighth	10 to 25
Ninth	1 to 10

MR. DALTON of England by careful experiment has shown that where there is a mellow soil three feet under any crop, it can defy the weather and come to maturity without a drop of rain after the 1st of June. This shows that successful tillage depends wholly on deep plowing.

If the amount of manure made upon the farm is insufficient to thoroughly coat the land intended for winter grain, and the soil is poor, by all means supplement your supply with some approved artificial manure.

THE Norwalk Reflector says that a farmer by the name of Snyder, of Ripley township, Huron county, Ohio, harvested this season, from twelve acres of new ground [illegible] bushels of wheat, an average of 17 bushels to the acre.

THE gelatinous mass, termed the mother of vinegar, is of no more use in changing cider or other liquors into vinegar than a sponge containing so much vinegar. It is the vinegar in the gelatinous mass that promotes the change, and so much pure vinegar is just as good if not better than the mother.—Exchange.

It is stated that there are already three thousand steam plows at work in England, some of them with steam engines capable of driving from three to six plows each.

THERE will be offered next season, white winter and spring rye, equal to the best white wheat. The grain is larger than any rye now in cultivation.

ADAM RANKIN, of Illinois, sold five month Berkshire Pigs at one hundred and fifty dollars each, at the St. Louis Fair.

A good thing is told from Chester county. A farmer has been fined for allowing weeds to grow on his land to the detriment of his neighbor's crops.

A GUARD has been constantly kept around the Huntingdon jail since the confinement therein of Bohner and Bordenburg, the Peightal murderers.

BOSTON is sending shoes to China by the Pacific Railroad.
